PHOTOGRAPHS OF RESIDENCES OF LAWYERS AND JUDGES IN MINNESOTA

• MLHP •

RESIDENCE OF A. J. DALEY, LUVERNE

Andrew J. Daley Home Luverne, Minnesota. Daley (1857-1919) was a lawyer in Luverne. Source: Arthur P. Rose, History of Rock and Pipestone Counties (1911).

Anson S. Brooks residence, 2445 Park Avenue, Minneapolis. Anson S. Brooks built two mansions on Park Avenue. This one, built in 1907, was designed by the architectural firm Lamoreaux and Long. In 1920 he and his wife moved to a mansion on 2535 Park Avenue, leaving the first to his son. Photo taken: 1950s. Source: Minneapolis Newspaper Photograph Collection Hennepin County Library.

Charles Duncan Gilfillan Estate Farmhouse, Redwood Falls, Minnesota. It is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Charles D. Gilfillan (1831-1902) was a lawyer and businessman in St. Paul. He was also the brother of Chief Justice James Gilfillan (1829-1894). Photograph taken: September 2, 2012. Photographer: McGhiever. Source: Creative Commons/Wikimedia

Charles H. Budd Residence Montevideo, Minnesota It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Charles Henry Budd (1848-1929) was a lawyer, Chippewa County attorney, probate judge and banker. Date of photograph: September 3, 2012 Source: McGhiever, photographer Creative Commons, Wikimedia

Cedarhurst Mansion Cottage Grove, Minnesota. Constructed 1911-1917 by Cass Gilbert architect. It is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. It was the summer home of Cordenio and Mary Severance. He was a partner in Davis, Kellogg & Severance, a St. Paul law firm. Date of photograph: unknown. Source: LoopNet

Huff-Lamberton House Winona, Minnesota It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Built by Henry Huff, an early developer and newspaperman, later bought and occupied by Henry Wilson Lamberton and family. Lamberton (1831-1905) was a lawyer, banker and railroad executive. Date of photograph: October 11, 2009 Photographer: Royalbroil Source: Creative Commons/Wikimedia

The boyhood home of Harry Blackmun, 847 Fourth Street East, St. Paul, Minnesota. Blackmun (1908-1999) served as Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, 1970-1994. Date of photograph: April 11, 2008. Photographer: Jay Hoover. Source: placegeography.org.

Pierce & Walter Butler House, 1345-1347 Summit Avenue, St. Paul. Pierce Butler (1866-1939) was a St. Paul lawyer, who served on the United States Supreme Court, 1923-1939. Photograph taken: January 6, 2013. Photographer: McGhiever. Source: Creative commons/Wikimedia,

The boyhood home of Warren Earl Burger 695 Conway Street, St. Paul, Minnesota. This home was constructed in 1884. Burger (1907-1995) served as Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, 1969-1986. Date of photograph: early 1990s (before remodeling). Photographer: Unknown Source: placegeography.org.

Residence of Louise Wilson McNair, 1301 Linden Avenue, Minneapolis. Mrs. McNair was the widow of William Woodbridge McNair (1836-1885), a Minneapolis lawyer and partner in Lochren, McNair & Gilfillan. He died on September 15, 1885, while this house was being constructed. Mrs. McNair oversaw its completion. Source: Isaac Atwater, 1 History of Minneapolis (1893).

Governor John Lind House New Ulm, Minnesota. It is on the National Register of Historic Homes. Lind (1854-1930), a lawyer, was Governor of Minnesota 1899-1901, and U. S. Congressman four terms, 1887-1893, and 1903-1905. Date of photograph: August 5, 2009. Photographer: Bobak Ha'Eri. Source: Creative Commons/Wikimedia.

Solomon Gilman Comstock Residence Moorhead, Minnesota. It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Comstock (1842-1933) was a lawyer, Clay County attorney, 1872-1878, state Representative, 1876-1877, 1879-1882, state Senator, 1883-1888, and Congressman for the Fifth Congressional District, 1889-1891. Date of photograph: September 23, 2013 Source: McGhiever, photographer Creative Commons, Wikimedia

Judge Charles Edwin Vanderburgh House, 923 Seventh Street South, Minneapolis. Built in 1871. Vanderburgh (1829-1898) was a Hennepin County District Court Judge, 1860-1881, and Associate Justice, Minnesota Supreme Court, 1882-1894. Source: Isaac Atwater, 1 History of Minneapolis (1893).

Frank B. Kellogg House, 633 Fairmont Avenue, St. Paul. It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Frank Billings Kellogg (1856-1937) was a St. Paul lawyer, "trustbuster" under President Theodore Roosevelt, U. S. Senator from Minnesota, 1917-1923, Secretary of State under President Coolidge, 1925-1929, recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize, 1929, and member of the World Court, 1930-1935. Photograph taken: December 8, 2012. Source: McGhiever, photographer. Creative Commons, Wikimedia

Residence of Howard Strickland and Mary Louise Abbott. 900 6th Avenue S.E., Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Abbott (1863-1944) was a railroad lawyer before being appointed Special Master in Chancery in federal court of the receiverships of several roads; later Commissioner and Master in Chancery in the federal court in Minneapolis. He wrote seven treatises and textbooks on corporation law, and served on the faculty of the University of Minnesota Law School teaching corporation law from 1897 to 1928.

Date of photograph: 1902.

Minneapolis Newspaper Photograph Collection, Hennepin County Library.

Franklin W. Murphy Home Wheaton, Minnesota Murphy (1869-1940), a lawyer, was President of the Minnesota State Bar Association 1933-1934. Photographer: Susan Granger. Date of photograph: 1984. Source: Minnesota Historical Society

Andrew John Volstead House Granite Falls, Minnesota Volstead (1860-1947) was admitted to the bar in 1884, served as Yellow Medicine County Attorney for 14 years, and Congressman for the Seventh District, 1903-1923. Date of photograph: September 13, 2009. Photographer: unknown. Source: Historic American Buildings Survey/Wikimedia

"Glensheen" Mansion Duluth, Minnesota It is on the National Register of Historic Places It was the home of Chester A. Congdon (1853-1916), a Duluth lawyer and businessman, and his family. Photograph taken: January 1, 1970. Source: Glensheen-Historic Congdon Estate website.

William Drew Washburn Residence Corner of Stevens Avenue and Twenty-second Street, Minneapolis. Built: 1883

 W. D. Washburn (1831-1912) was admitted to the Maine bar, moved to Minnesota Territory in 1857, practiced law briefly, and engaged in a variety of businesses. Active in Republican politics, he served in Congress, 1879-1885, and the U. S. Senate, 1889-1895. Source: Isaac Atwater, 2 History of Minneapolis (1893).

Frank D. Larrabee Home. Minneapolis, Minnesota Larrabee (1856-1932) was a member of the law firm Larrabee & Gammon, and author of Functions of Government (1897). Source: Chuckstoyland.com

Lena O. Smith House, 3905 Fifth Avenue South, Minneapolis. It is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Smith (1885-1966) was a prominent Black female lawyer. Photograph taken: July 26, 2014. Photographer: McGhiever. Source: Creative Commons/Wikimedia

John Bachop Gilfillan Residence Corner of Fourth Street and Tenth Avenue, Minneapolis. Built: 1874. Gilfillan (1835 - 1924), a Minneapolis lawyer, partner in Lochren, McNair & Gilfillan, active in Republican politics, served one term in Congress 1885-1887. Source: Isaac Atwater, 1 History of Minneapolis (1893).

Judge E. St. Julian Cox Home St. Peter, Minnesota It is on the National Register of Historic Places Eugene Saint Julien Cox (1834-1898), was a St. Peter lawyer, state legislator and Judge of District Court, Ninth Judicial District, 1877-1882. Date: August 5, 2009. Photographer: Bobak Ha'Eri Source: Creative Commons/Wikimedia

Floyd B. Olson House, 1914 West 49th Street, Minneapolis. Olson (1885-1936) was Hennepin County attorney, 1920-1931, and Governor of Minnesota, 1931-1936. It is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Photograph taken: March 8, 2008. Photographer: Elkman Source: Creative Commons/Wikimedia

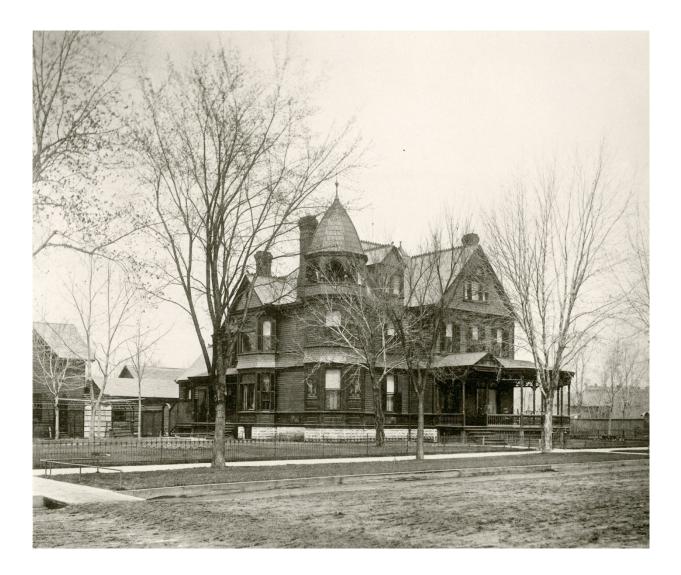

Judge John Melvil Shaw Home, 1405 Tenth Avenue South, Minneapolis. Built in 1889. John M. Shaw (1833-1897), was a Minneapolis lawyer and judge on the Hennepin County District Court, 1882-1883. Source: Isaac Atwater, 1 History of Minneapolis (1893).

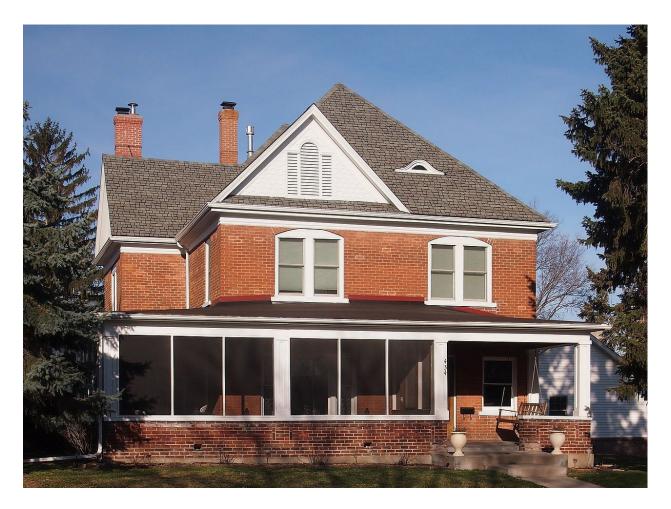

Burton-Rosenmeier House Little Falls, Minnesota. It is on the National Register of Historic Places. It was built about 1900 by Barney Burton, a merchant; in 1921 it became the family home of Christian Rosenmeier (1874-1932), a lawyer, banker and state senator; and later by his son, Gordon Rosenmeier (1907-1989), also a lawyer and state senator. Photograph taken: September 26, 2013. Photographer: McGhiever. Creative Commons, Wikimedia

Judge Lorin Cray Home Mankato, Minnesota It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Lorin Cray (1844-1927) was a Mankato lawyer and Judge of District Court, Sixth Judicial District, 1900-1908. Date: August 5, 2009 Source: Bobak Ha'Eri Photographer Creative Commons, Wikimedia

Residence of Justice William Mitchell and William DeWitt Mitchell, his son. Winona, Minnesota. Mitchell (1832-1900) served on the Minnesota Supreme Court, 1881-1900; William DeWitt Mitchell (1874-1955) was Solicitor General under President Coolidge, 1923-1927, and Attorney General under President Hoover, 1927-1931. Built: 1875. Source: Winona County Historical Society.

Julius Anthony Coller Home Shakopee, Minnesota It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Coller (1859-1940) was a lawyer, clerk of district court, Scott County attorney, state senator and member of the Board of Regents. Date: April 9, 2016 Photographer: McGhiever Source: Creative Commons/Wikimedia

Nicherson-Tarbox Home Monticello, Minnesota It is on the National Register of Historic Places. This home was built by Evert Nicherson, a lumberman, in 1889, and bought about a decade later by James C. Tarbox (1857-1908), a lawyer who served as district court judge from 1897 to 1899. Date: March 25, 2016 Photographer: McGhiever Source: Creative Commons, Wikimedia

James B. Wakefield Home Blue Earth, Minnesota It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Wakefield (1825-1910) was a lawyer, state representative and senator, Lieutenant Governor, 1876-1880, and two term Congressman for the Second District, 1883-1887. Date: June 29, 2012 Photographer: Elkman Source: Creative Commons/Wikimedia

Charles A. Lindbergh, Sr., House. Little Falls, Minnesota. Lindbergh (1859-1924), a lawyer in Little Falls, attorney for Morrison County, 1891-1893, and U. S. Representative for the Sixth Congressional District from 1907 to 1917. Source: Historic American Buildings Survey, Library of Congress.

Henry C. Oldenburg House. Carlton, Minnesota. Built in 1894. It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Oldenburg (1858-1926) was a lawyer and politician, who was influential in Carlton County development. Date of photograph: September 14, 2008. Photographer: Elkman. Source: Wikimedia/Creative Commons.

William Gates Le Duc House. Hastings, Minnesota. Built: 1862-1865. It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Le Duc (1823-1917), a lawyer, moved to St. Paul in 1850; was a railroad builder and executive, served in the Civil War rising to rank of General; Commissioner of Agriculture in the Administration of Rutherford B. Hayes, 1877-1881. Date of photograph: March 22, 2013. Photographer: McGhiever. Source: Wikimedia/Creative Commons.

Residence of Hiram Fairchild Stevens, 15 Sherburne Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota. Stevens (1852-1904) was a prominent lawyer, who edited the two volume History of the Bench and Bar of Minnesota, posthumously published in 1904. Date of photograph: March 2, 2008. Photographer: Notoriousnola. Source: placegeography.org.

Charles E. Flandrau House, 385 Pleasant Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota. Flandrau (1828-1903), served on the Territorial Supreme Court, 1857-1858, and the State Supreme Court, 1858-1864. The home was built in 1871 and razed in 1955. Date of photograph and name of photographer: unknown. Source: placegeography.org.

Andrew Clarkson Dunn House Winnebago, Minnesota. Dunn (1834-1918), a lawyer, founded the town of Winnebago, was Secretary of the State Senate, 1857-1858, Clerk of the House of Representatives, 1864-1866, and State Representative, 1881-1882. It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Date of Photograph: June 29, 2012. Photographer: Elkman. Source: Wikimedia/Creative Commons.

The Emerson & Mary Hadley House 123 Farrington Street, St. Paul. Emerson Hadley (1857-1916) was house counsel for the Northern Pacific Railway Company. Architect: Cass Gilbert. Date of Construction: 1895. Date of Photograph: (ca) 1897. Source: Historic Homes of Minnesota website

Arthur Winfield Wright Home. Austin, Minnesota. Wright (1861-1927) was a lawyer and Spanish-American War veteran. Constructed: 1866-1874. It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Date of photograph: July 29, 2013. Photographer: McGhiever. Source: Wikimedia/Creative Commons

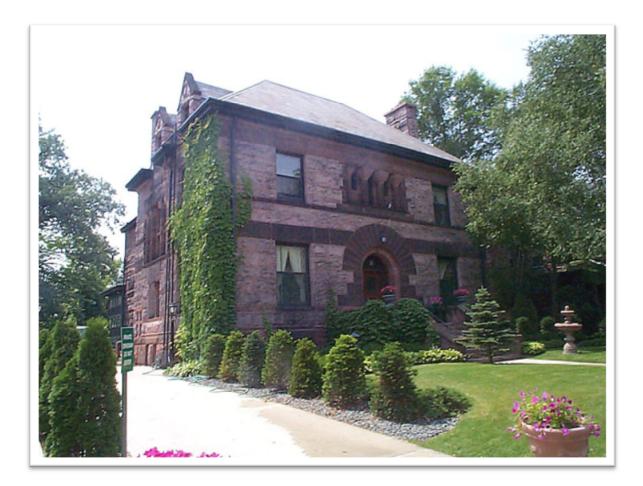

B. O. Cutter House, later John Bachop Gilfillan House. 400 Tenth Avenue, S.E., Minneapolis. Cutter, a carpenter built the house, which was later owned by John B. Gilfillan (1835-1924), a member of the Lochren, McNair & Gilfillan law firm. It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Date of photograph: July 19, 2013. Photographer: McGhiever. Source: Wikimedia/Creative Commons.

Andrew Ryan McGill House 2203 Scudder Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota. McGill (1840-1905) served in the Dakota War, admitted to the bar in 1868, Insurance Commissioner, 1873-1887, and Governor one term, 1887-1889. It is on the National Register of Historic Places. Date of photograph: March 15, 2008. Photographer: William Wesen. Source: Creative Commons/Wikimedia

Henry John Horn Residence, 50 Irvine Park, St. Paul, Minnesota. Horn (1821-1902) was a prominent St. Paul lawyer. Date of photograph: June 13, 2007. Photographer: Jay Hoover. Source: placegeography.org.

William Hurley Lightner House, 318 Summit Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota. Designed by Cass Gilbert, it was built in 1893. Lightner (1856-1936) was a prominent St. Paul lawyer who formed a partnership with George B. Young, former Associate Justice of the Minnesota Supreme Court. Date of photograph: April 17, 2008. Photographer: unknown Source: placegeography.org.

Lightner-Young House, 322-324 Summit Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota. Designed by Cass Gilbert, it was built in 1886. Owners were William Lightner and his law partner, George B. Young. Date of photograph: ca. 2008. Photographer: unknown Source: placegeography.org.

Clara and Andreas Ueland home, 3820 West Calhoun Boulevard, Minneapolis, Minnesota. Built in 1890, it was razed in 1953. Andreas Ueland (1853-1933), a well-known lawyer, was Hennepin County Probate Court Judge, while Clara was a prominent suffragette. Date of photograph and name of photographer: unknown. Source: placegeography.org.

The Home of Winfield W. Bardwell, Hennepin County District Court Judge 2901 Brookwood Terrace, Minneapolis. Date of photograph: October 25, 1931. Photographer: Norton & Peel. Source: Minneapolis Tribune. Minneapolis Newspaper Photograph Collection Hennepin County Library.

The Home of Gunnar H. Nordbye, United States District Court Judge 4145 Bryant Avenue South, Minneapolis. Date of photograph: March 31, 1931. Minneapolis Newspaper Photograph Collection Hennepin County Library.

The Home of William A. Lochren, United States District Court Judge 422 10th Avenue, South East, Minneapolis. Date of photograph: unknown. Minneapolis Newspaper Photograph Collection Hennepin County Library.

THE MATHEWS HOME IN MARSHALL

Marvin E. Mathews (1849-1932), practiced law in Marshall, the seat of Lyon County. Source: Arnold Rose, An Illustrated History of Lyon County, Minnesota (1912).

First Posted MLHP: January 1, 2020.

Most recent addition: April 2021.

Additional photographs will be posted when they are located.

If copyrighted, they will be posted with the consent of the copyright holder.